'Misery is over' for Libyan expats

► Londoner says 'price is high' for anti-Gadhafi uprising ► Dictator killed Thursday

ANGELA MULLINS
@METRONEWS.CA

Think about the importance of Canada Day, then multiply.

That's how London resident Mustafa Ali describes the significance of the death of former Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi.

"I'm full of joy, happiness," said Ali, 47. "The dictatorship is over. Misery is over."

The local Libyan community has been keeping a close eye on news reports from the North African country since a rebel uprising began in mid-February.

On Thursday, Ali was practically glued to a computer screen, watching Facebook and other websites for any new information about the siege of Gadhafi's hometown of Sirte.

He rattled off detail after detail about the anti-Gadhafi uprising and the status of the former dictator's family, and recounted the sound of NATO jets flying overhead during a phone conversation with his mother a few weeks ago. Canadian fighter jets have played a role in the mission, launched in March.

Ali said he's glad Gadhafi won't see his day in court. His death gives Libya a better chance for stability, he said.

"Everybody's happy that he's dead. There's no hope for his followers now."

Ali left Libya in 1983, 14 years after Gadhafi took power. He described the dictator's rule as one in which everyone was "worthless."

"Anytime we go home for a visit, we don't know if we're going to come back," he said. "You could be killed at any moment."

Now the family Ali left behind—including his elderly parents—can have "a new beginning of democracy and freedom."

There is no I in Occupy

► Group to gather at 1 p.m. Saturday in park near Dundas and Colborne

ANGELA MULLINS

Don't tell Eric Shepperd that Occupy London is "leaderless."

The reality, the 27-year-old participant said, is quite the opposite.

"The thing about this movement is it's leader-full," said Shepperd. "No one is more important than anyone else."

Decisions about which direction the movement takes "are made on the fly," he said.

Because of that, no one's really sure what will happen when the occupiers get together this weekend in Campbell Park. The only thing planned is a meeting, or as Shepperd calls it, a "general assembly."

"We don't want to make any decisions prior to that point because we want to get everybody's input," he said.

"People are waking up and saying, 'Hey, this world has problems.' That's the first step."

Shepperd takes issue with media reports in which members of the Occupy movements — which started weeks ago in the U.S. — have been called "disorganized."

That view, he said, circumvents the idea of a purely democratic movement that gives everyone a voice instead of putting only a few on a higher tier.

Occupations started as a way to decry a gulf between what's been called 99 per cent of people and the other one per cent, categorized as the immensely rich and politically powerful.

New, smaller Liberal cabinet sworn in ► Ex-attorney general Chris Bentley (MPP London West) becomes Ontario's new energy minister ► Deb Matthews (MPP London North Centre) remains health minister

Premier Dalton McGuinty promised to work with the opposition parties in a new minority government but warned he will not tolerate divisive politics as he unveiled his new cabinet.

"We will not be dissuaded by those who seek to divide Ontarians at a time when we need to be strong," McGuinty said during a swearing-in ceremony for his new cabinet Thursday.

McGuinty's cabinet has six fewer ministers than before, and includes no new faces as the premier opts for experience to stick-handle the possibility of another economic crisis.

The premier, who is leading Ontario's first minority government in 26 years after falling one seat short of a majority, also struck a more conciliatory tone than he has since the election, saying he will "lead with humility" to tackle the province's various challenges.

The new cabinet includes fewer women than the previous one, several ministers from the Toronto area, a handful of politicians from southwestern Ontario and two northern representatives.

Gadhafi death buries regime

Dragged from hiding in a drainage pipe, a wounded Moammar Gadhafi raised his hands and begged revolutionary fighters: "Don't kill me, my sons." Within an hour, he was dead, but not before jubilant Libyans had vented decades of hatred by pulling the eccentric dictator's hair and parading his bloodied body on the hood of a truck.

SETH WENIG/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The death Thursday of Gadhafi, two months after he was driven from power and into hiding, decisively buries the nearly 42-year regime that had turned the oil-rich country into an international pariah and his own personal fiefdom.

It also thrusts Libya into a new age in which its transitional leaders must overcome deep divisions and rebuild nearly all its institutions from scratch to achieve dreams of democracy.

"We have been waiting for this historic moment for a long time. Moammar Gadhafi has been killed," Prime Minister Mahmoud Jibril said in the capital of Tripoli. "I would like to call on Libyans to put aside the grudges and only say one word, which is Libya, Libya, Libya."

Other leaders have fallen in the Arab Spring uprisings, but Gadhafi, 69, is the first to be killed. He was killed in his hometown of Sirte, where revolutionary fighters overwhelmed the last of his loyalist supporters Thursday after weeks of heavy battles.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

► Precise circumstances of Gadhafi's death remain unclear ► Metro pieces together what we believe to be the final moments leading to his death

1. NTC fighters' attack on Sirte

Following a 90-minute battle Thursday morning, fighters said with the help of NATO airstrikes they had taken control of Sirte, ending a two-month siege and eliminating the last important holdout post for troops loyal to the deposed leader.

Reports suggest that Gadhafi along with key loyalists tried to flee east toward Misrata as the last battle was ongoing.

2. Rebels find Gadhafi in pipe

The Colonel's convoy was reportedly ambushed, with Gadhafi managing to flee.

The ousted leader was located some time later in a storm-water drainpipe.

"Don't shoot, don't shoot!" — the apparent words of the Colonel as he pleaded with NTC rebels for their mercy, according to fighter Mohammed Al Bibi.

3. Gadhafi meets his end

There is uncertainty how exactly Gadhafi died.

An alleged eyewitness said that he saw the Colonel being shot in the abdomen.

Grisly mobile phone video footage appears to show a bloodied Gadhafi being roughly handled.

Other footage exclusive to Al Jazeera shows Gadhafi's shirtless body on the ground.

4. NTC confirm Gadhafi death

Following word that Gadhafi had initially been captured, confirmation of the Colonel's death was made official. "We announce to the world that Moammar Gadhafi has been killed at the hands of the revolutionaries," Abdul Hafiz Ghoga, vice chairman of the NTC said. Reports have surfaced that Gadhafi's corpse is at a mosque in Misrata. ● ANTHONY JOHNSTON

Harper hails end of Libyan dictator

Canada's military mission in Libya is expected to end by early November following Thursday's death of Moammar Gadhafi.

The dictator's demise marked the end of four decades of erratic and brutal rule that saw world leaders both engage and cast out the leader of the oil-rich nation before he was finally driven from power by his own people.

"The Libyan people can finally turn the page on 42 years of vicious oppression and continue their journey toward a better future," Prime Minister Stephen Harper said.

But their actions in the final moments of Gadhafi's life are now under scrutiny with observers concerned revolutionaries may have meted out the same kind of violent justice that charac-

Wall Street protesters look beyond traditional media to spread message

The Wall Street protest against economic inequality has a chaotic and complicated relationship with media that has helped spread its message across the world from a small Manhattan park.

Like the demonstrations themselves, Occupy Wall Street's media operation has no clear leader or simple message.

Some of its volunteers work to help reporters whose cameras and microphones dot Zuccotti Park, even as many protesters express an aversion toward the press.

A red-flowered umbrella and flimsy blue tarp hanging over two tables marked the centerpiece for the media operation, amid sleeping bags and circulating crowds.

"It's triage," said Bill Dobbs, a veteran liberal activist who is one of about two dozen volunteers who take shifts at the press area. There is no central phone number and Dobbs' cellphone voice mail tends to be full.

The media volunteers have counted at least 500 outlets that have sent reporters to the park, including a New Zealand newspaper, a college newspaper from Texas and a documentary filmmaker from Australia. Trucks from television networks are parked along a narrow street next to the park, their transmitters reaching for the sky.

If asked, the volunteers work as "fixers" for reporters who want to interview specific types of people — for example, a student overloaded with college loan debts or a jobless middle-aged person, said Jeff Smith, a volunteer who works in advertising.

Last weekend the group held media training sessions for protesters to give tips in dealing with combative reporters.

Julianne Pepitone, a reporter for CNNMoney.com who has been covering the protest since it began, said that in the early days, media volunteers would often approach her in the park and ask if she needed any help. It struck her as a well-oiled machine.

Still, it can get frustrating covering a leaderless movement. "When you speak to these people, they are very careful to say, 'I don't speak for the whole revolution. No one does,'" she said.

What good is growth?

► Despite GDP gains, we're working harder to stay afloat

Index findings

► Canadians are working out more and taking longer vacations, but they are spending less time engaged in arts and culture.

► Health care saw a slight gain — we're smoking less and getting our flu shots, but diabetes and depression were on the rise.

A generation of solid economic growth has meant little in the everyday lives of most Canadians, according to a new index of well-being.

The finding is a yellow light for decision-makers that social unrest is just around the corner unless deep changes are made, warns Roy Romanow, the advisory board chairman of the University of Waterloo group that created the index.

The index suggests the middle class, in particular, is eroding.

"There are some very, very troubling signs," Romanow said in an interview.

"I think if we continue on this trajectory we're going to have bigger and bigger disparities. You can never build a solid political, social and economic community with wide disparities."

The Canadian Index of Wellbeing is meant to be GDP's alter ego, measuring the quality of life in society in ways gross domestic product does not.

The index has been years in the making, pulling together 64 indicators to track Canadians' progress in areas such as community spirit, education, health, environment, leisure and democratic engagement.

While GDP measures

what companies and government produce, the well-being index measures how Canada and its people are faring.

It shows that between 1994 and 2008, well-being improved by just 11 per cent. The economy over that period grew by 31 per cent.

So while investment and corporate activity were ticking along at a decent pace, Canadian households saw only minor improvements in their lifestyle.

The index's subcomponents show that quality of life actually deteriorated over that time frame in areas such as the environment, leisure and culture, and time use.

A typical household is now working harder and longer to keep on track financially, at the expense of having free time with family and friends.

Tim Hortons coffee cups go green out East

JENNIFER TAPLIN
IN HALIFAX

Don't worry if you're emotionally attached to your Tim Hortons cup. You'll see it again — when it's reincarnated as a takeout tray.

Thursday, the Canadian coffee-serving institution announced its plan to divert mounds of paper cups from landfill in Nova Scotia.

Tim Hortons and Scotia Recycling worked out a program two years ago to collect the cups and ship them to paper manufacturer CKF Inc. to make them into trays.

The program is now phased in at all of the province's 156 restaurants.

Four-stream recycling units in the restaurants collect the cups. Customers have generally been sorting the cups and other paper products properly, said Greg Smith, Tim Hortons' senior manager for regional marketing.

WHAT YOU NEED TO FINANCE YOUR BUSINESS

HERE ARE THREE KEY FACTORS TO TAKE A LOOK AT

The most important ingredient for any business is money.

The more than two million self-employed Canadians know that to secure financing, you need to take a look at three key factors:

YOUR BUSINESS PLAN

A business plan is one of the first things most lenders will want to see. Show lenders how you plan to implement your business and convince them that you will succeed.

Consultants are one resource to assist you in drafting a plan, but there are also lower-cost services. Free services (such as business planning resources and secondary market research) are offered by your local library or through government services like Canada Business Ontario and many banks now offer free online business planning software.

Anne and Alan Dickson, owners of Pig Out Roasters in Ontario, know the importance of business planning when it comes to financing. Their spit-roasting venture has entered its fourth successful year in Canada and was awarded a business achievement award in 2009. "If a bank won't lend to you, then your business is not viable," says Anne, providing a word of advice for new entrepreneurs.

YOUR CREDIT RATING

Lenders will consider your personal finances when you apply for a loan. While it may not be the only factor, most lenders will look at your credit rating as an indicator of how you have repaid financing in the past. Keep on top of your credit and, if needed, take the necessary steps to improve your credit to make you more attractive to lenders.

YOUR FINANCIAL INVESTMENT

Be prepared to invest your own capital into your business. Most financing ventures, including government financing programs, will need to see a portion of investment coming from you.

Raising capital will probably be one of the more challenging parts of starting or running a business. To be successful, get as informed as possible on the subject.

HOW TO KEEP IT FRESH

MAKE SURE YOUR BUSINESS PLAN IS UP-TO-DATE

If your business plan has been collecting dust since you launched, it's likely time to refresh. Updating your business plan on a regular basis is critical for any business to stay relevant. A plan should be a continually evolving road map to where you want your business to be in the coming months and years.

Here are some common business-planning pitfalls.

DOING IT ALONE

It's hard to be impartial when it comes to your own business. So involve employees, experts and other small business owners who may have an interest in the process. They can help you generate new ideas.

TOO MUCH INFORMATION

Keep it short and simple. Present your business ideas clearly and stick to the facts: Incorporate market studies, benchmark reports and sales projections. Let these facts persuade your investors or lenders that your business will make a profit.

THE WRONG DETAILS FOR THE WRONG AUDIENCE

You don't want too much information, but you need to include the numbers and facts that back up your ideas. If you want lenders or investors to take your business plan seriously, make sure the format is appropriate for your audience and look into different templates and sample business plans.

Continuous business planning helps identify opportunities, competition and changing industry trends. Your business plan will not only sell your idea to potential investors or lenders, it will also keep your business goals on track. — News Canada

THE METRO LIST

PAUL SULLIVAN
METRO

Is it just me, or does the world get weirder by the week?

Consider the following evidence, as we assemble this week's zeitgeist, item by item:

1 Moammar Gadhafi: It's been a bad year for jihadists and despots: Mubarak, bin Laden and now the terrorist clown (or is that clown terrorist?) gets his.

2 Bicoastal bliss: The feds launch a lot of boats with $35 billion. Stephen Harper could get elected king this morning, at least in Vancouver and Halifax, where the ship-building industries are enjoying an instant revival. We's the bys what build the boats. Buy Canadian, eh?

3 Shark-fin ban: Toronto city council votes Monday on a motion to ban the sale of shark fins and shark-fin soup. Did you know that 73 million sharks a year are killed for their fins and that some species have been reduced by 90 per cent? Save the sharks! Switch to tomato bisque!

4 Chinese toddler: A poor little two-year-old girl was run over — twice — by some jerks, and more than a dozen people walked around her as she lay screaming for nearly 10 minutes. It's causing a lot of hand-wringing in China. Let's just hope that when they stop wringing, they actually start helping people who need a hand.

5 Jungle book: The other unhappy story everyone's talking about is the guy who let all his lions and tigers loose in Ohio and then killed himself. It turned into a bad day for the whole menagerie as state deputies turned into big-game hunters, and now most of the lions, tigers and, oh my, bears are dead. At last report, there was one lone monkey out there. My advice: don't monkey around. Get out of Ohio.

6 Torture enablers are people too: George W. Bush comes to Metro Vancouver Friday, and the Occupy people want him arrested for war crimes. Hail (and rocks and rotten tomatoes) to the Chief.

7 True blue: Steven Slater, the guy who escaped from his job as a Jet Blue flight attendant — literally — down the emergency chute, avoids hard time. But has to pay the airline back for damaging their chute: $831.25 bucks a month. And he thought life was tedious before. But then there's the book tour to look forward to.

8 BieberWatch: Justin Bieber's tour stops in Peru, the home of his doppelganger, Alejandro Avilez Kamp, the Peruvian Justin Bieber. Geez, there are two of them.

Worth Mentioning

Doctors sometimes call the anesthesia drug by its nickname — milk of amnesia. Patients are calling it the "Michael Jackson drug."

Ever since propofol was blamed in the singer's death, patients who seldom asked or cared about what kind of sedation they were getting are suddenly peppering their doctors with questions about the potent drug.

"You won't believe how many people ... ask me: 'Are you going to give me the Michael Jackson drug?'" said Dr. H.A. Tillmann Hein, president of the Texas Society of Anesthesiologists.

While some initially balk at going under, fearing they will end up like Jackson, they come around after Hein explains that propofol, widely used for surgeries and other procedures for more than 20 years, is safe when used by a trained professional.

Propofol gained notoriety in 2009 after an autopsy found Jackson died of an overdose. Prosecutors have accused his personal physician, Dr. Conrad Murray, of giving the 50-year-old pop icon a lethal dose at the singer's rented Los Angeles mansion. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Just like that, a planet is born

Astronomers have captured the first direct image of a planet being born.

Adam Kraus, of the University of Hawaii's Institute for Astronomy, said the planet is being formed out of dust and gas circling a two-million-year-old star about 450 light years from Earth.

The planet itself, based on scientific models of how planets form, is estimated to have started taking shape about 50,000 to 100,000 years ago.

Scientists hadn't been able to see such young planets before because the bright light of the stars they're orbiting outshines them.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Synopsis

The new film is a prequel to the first films and follows the template set by the first two movies. Set in the VHS era of 1988, recurring characters Katie and Kristi Rey are little girls living with their mother (Lauren Bittner) and her boyfriend (Christopher Nicholas Smith), a wedding video editor. When they start hearing strange sounds in their new Carlsbad, California house, he sets up video cameras to find out what's keeping them up at night. The movie asks the question, Is the boyfriend obsessed or is the house possessed?

Horror hat trick

► Paranormal Activity franchise should be getting old, but the third instalment still offers plenty of scares ► Film a shining example of 'found footage' genre

Richard: Mark, I have to say, I'm a bit of a sucker for things that go bump in the night and even though the Paranormal Activity series should be a little long in the tooth by now, it still made me jump. Are you as big a fraidy cat as I am?

Mark: I usually pop a Xanax before I see a horror film so I can better appreciate the movie for its technical merits. But I didn't for this one. And yes, the movie did frighten me, but only in the last 15 minutes, which were terrific. I found it a bit too long getting going and had a bit too much dark humour to create that air of dread right off the top. The first two installments of the franchise really creeped me out; this one is better made, but didn't give me the punch until the end.

RC: This one is 99 per cent anticipation, one per cent payoff, but the one per cent is pretty good. I think the low-fi feel of the movies — the picture really does look like home video most of the time — combined with really natural performances from unknown actors make the Paranormal Activity movies feel like real "found footage" movies. Most movies of the genre are a little too slick. These aren't. There's no music, no stars and it feels like you're watching something that could be real ... almost.

MB: Yes, and that's not easy. It takes real filmmaking talent to look this artless. One thing I love about the series, and this movie in particular, is how much of the plot takes place at the edges of the screen. You really have to pay attention to see what's really happening in the frame. And the static takes almost feel like some European art film, although the technical innovation of the oscillator-cam in this film is inspired. I was also pleased that the movie had a back-story and plot, although, cleverly, you don't realize it until the movie is done.

RC: This one is a prequel, featuring the recurring characters Katie and Kristi Rey as creepy little kids. Not sure what's next though ... maybe Paranormal Activity in Outer Space?

MB: Well, before the screening, we were warned that to prevent privacy, the theatre would be continuously scanned using night vision technology. Paranormal Activity 4, anyone?

Johnny Depp has been working to bring Hunter S.

hitting theatres, Depp shares with Metro, in his own words, some of his memories of his close friendship with the late author.

live his life — you knew he wasn't going to be the guy who just sort of slipped off the chair and went away. You knew it was going to be self-inflicted. I wasn't particularly shocked, because you knew it would happen one day. But then you start cursing the bastard, thinking, Come on, man. One last phone call? Maybe some hideous practical joke before you do it? But he did actually ultimately have the best practical joke of all, because his last wish was to be blown out of a giant cannon in his back yard. Now, there are no giant cannons of that size. He wanted 150 feet of cannon, and then I found out that the Statue of Liberty was 151 feet tall, and I thought he'd really hate me if it were any smaller than the Statue of Liberty. So we changed the plans and we built it up to 153 feet tall. We broke the records then. The great joke is that we were all forced to focus on something else as opposed to focusing on the loss of a great, great friend. Now it was a question of how do we shoot the bastard into the stratosphere legally and get away with it?"

Meeting Hunter for the first time

It was around Christmas time of 1994. I was in Aspen, and this friend of mine said, 'You should come to the Woody Creek Tavern. I'll have Hunter come down if you want to meet him.' Somewhere around midnight the front door opened and all I could see initially were sparks — just sparks shooting everywhere, and then people jumping for cover. You could hear this sort of muffled, 'Out of my way, you bastards!' The sea parted, and the sparks stopped and he arrived right in front of me, and then this southern gentleman came over and said, 'My name's Hunter, how do you do?' And that was it. From that second on, if we were apart we were on the phone constantly. It was a love affair, a major love affair that hung around until he made his exit."

On the road with Hunter

We were on a book tour, and he wanted me to go on the road with him as his road manager and as his head of security. He would refer to me as Ray, his head of security. So he'd say, 'I'd like you to meet Ray, my head of security.' And they were like, 'That's Johnny Depp.' And he'd go, 'No! His name is Ray.' And he just stayed with that. We ended up in San Francisco because his back went out on him on the tour. So I was essentially locked in a hotel room with him, in a suite with Hunter — just me and him for five straight days. And so all the stuff you read about in Fear and Loathing with the grapefruits and saving the shrimp cocktails, all that stuff? All true.

Learning of Hunter's suicide

"I was here, in Los Angeles. If you knew Hunter — if you really spent time with him and you knew how he negotiated life and dictated the way he was going to

"And I got this phone call, first day of shooting, from Bill Murray, who'd played him in Where the Buffalo Roam. And Bill says, 'Johnny, I just want to warn you, you've got to be careful.' I said, 'About what?' He said, 'Well, you know the way you become as Hunter and the way you speak as Hunter, how you sort of learn how to think like him? It never goes away.'"

Who was the Bard?

► Director Roland Emmerich takes on the literary establishment with his new film that questions whether Shakespeare really wrote all those plays

NED EHRBAR
SCENE@METRONews.ca
METRO WORLD NEWS IN HOLLYWOOD

While he was busy making millions with disaster films like Independence Day, the Day After Tomorrow and 2012, German director Roland Emmerich secretly had a completely different kind of film in mind — a film about the true authorship of Shakespeare's plays.

And while he does manage to sneak an explosion or two into Elizabethan London, Anonymous is indeed a completely different film than what he's made before, and he always knew bringing it to the world would be "an uphill battle."

Do you have your own opinion about the identity of Shakespeare?

I side with the artists and writers. I side with Mark Ryland, Derek Jacobi, Walt Whitman, Henry James, Sigmund Freud, Charlie Chaplin, Orson Welles — all these people believed that the man from Stratford didn't write it.

The problem with this whole thing, anyway, is there's the literary establishment — the educators, the professors, the school teachers and all these people who write books about the man from Stratford.

They've devoted their whole lives, and now the Master of Disaster comes along and makes this movie — maybe I'm the antichrist, we don't know yet. They're thinking I am. But whatever it is, they have to bedevil me, they have to kind of think this is all nonsense, but it isn't. And it's an uphill battle, I knew that going in.

What made you want to take on this subject?

The orthodox scholars have a huge problem with the work of Shakespeare.

How do they want to explain that? How can a commoner write only about the point of view of an aristocrat? Why is there so much poetry?

It's very hard to believe that it was written by a guy who was a younger man who was just coming to London as a commoner. The whole thing just doesn't make sense. We wanted to just show another version of it, just an alternate history.

The last time we spoke, you were casting this film. How is it to show the finished product to the world?

It's a little nerve-racking, but it's always nerve-racking whenever you make a movie. You have to show it, you know? I actually do movies mainly because I want to see them, but films are so expensive, you have to show them to people. Lots of people! And that's always nerve-racking for me because I'm just afraid that they'll throw tomatoes at me or something.

It's not your usual subject matter.

Yeah, it was very risky to make, because boy if I would f— that one up, then people would say, "Oh, my God. Do we need that?"

But I think we did a pretty good job, so hopefully the people will not say that. But it was just a pleasure to work with these incredible actors.

I had on this film the freedom to cast whoever I wanted, and because of that it was really a joy to do it.

You can be excused for questioning the need to resurrect Rowan Atkinson's James Bond spoof eight years after we all roundly ignored the original. The sequel still relies on bad puns and sight gags to hold the attention of its audience (mostly pre-pubescent boys). But as far as movies with bad puns and sight gags go, this one is pretty good. Thank Atkinson for that, as he still has the ability to make this character loveable while mugging for the camera.

Dogs days gone 'darker'

► American version of Wilfred promises to stay dour, says star

► Jason Gann, left, stars alongside Elijah Wood in Wilfred

IAN JOHNSTON
SCENE@METRONews.CA

Ten years on, TV viewers still can't seem to get enough of actor Jason Gann in a floppy dog suit.

Which is just fine with the Aussie star of Wilfred, a short film that became an Australian TV series, only to be reinvented recently as an American sitcom.

"It's not like I've been wearing the suit for all 10 years. There have been long gaps," laughs Gann, who was in Toronto Wednesday to promote Wilfred's debut on the new FX-Canada.

"But I could easily do it another 10 years. As long as people find the character funny and interesting."

In its American incarnation, Wilfred centres on a suicidal lawyer (Elijah Wood) who meets a comely neighbour and her dog Wilfred (Gann). Except Ryan sees Wilfred as an angry, pot-smoking man in a shabby dog suit. What ensue are odd adventures in which Wilfred shows Ryan how to overcome his fears and embrace life.

Gann — who also co-created the series — says fans of the original Aussie version shouldn't worry that the show has been sanitized for North American audiences.

"I never saw the two versions as all that different. To me, it just feels like the show and the character have evolved."

The American version has already proven a hit, with a second season already confirmed.

"When I first read it, I laughed my ass off," says American actress Fiona Gubelmann, who plays Wil-fred's owner Jenna.

"There are so many lines you just don't forget easily."

She says the most difficult thing is keeping a straight face during filming with a man-sized dog in your ear.

"I'd be having a serious conversation with Elijah and all I hear behind me is 'Ball! Ball! Ball!'. You really have to learn to block it out."

One element the American version does lack is some of the original's swearing and nudity.

"We had to work harder to keep it dark," says Gann. "But I think we were so successful, we made the show even darker."

The wild life of singer Peter Wolf

► From rooming with filmmaker David Lynch as teens to having artist Norman Rockwell as a babysitter, Wolf's life has had some fascinating twists and turns ► Musician says he might share his strange stories in a memoir

PAT HEALY
SCENE@METRONews.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN BOSTON

Any single one of Peter Wolf's biographical details could make for an interesting book.

The 65-year-old singer for the J. Geils Band and solo performer was college roommates with director David Lynch, as a child his father occasionally left him with Norman Rockwell as a babysitter, and acts that have opened for him include U2, Fleetwood Mac and Tom Petty.

"What happens a lot of times is that it's been in vogue for performers and musicians to write these books," he says, "and people have been after me for the past decade to do one."

So does this mean that a Wolf memoir is forthcoming? His answer is loaded with both possibility and trepidation.

"It's in there, and it's got to come out, so I would imagine so," he says, "But there's very few books of that nature that I find worthwhile."

Surely he found Keith Richards' autobiography a stimulating read?

"Yeah, I helped Keith with that," he says.

So you might have to wait before even pre-ordering a copy of Freeze-Frame: The Picture Perfect Life of Peter Wolf (our title, not his). But in his live performance tonight he will be telling quite a few stories, mixed in with solo material and Geils fan favourites.

"Sometimes when we're backstage and the stories come out, they just end up onstage," he says.

Highlights on any given night might include tales of being chased down a

Big, bad Wolf

► There was only one time that Peter Wolf can remember actually rehearsing a story. The J. Geils Band frontman heard people yelling out specifics from a story he had told to introduce the song, Must Of Got Lost after it appeared on a live album in the '70s.

► "I didn't even know what people were yelling out when they were yelling out, 'Raputa! Raputa!' and people were getting into it and I had to sit in a hotel room and memorize it."

back alley by Sly Stone, hanging out with Van Morrison, when the Irish singer called Cambridge home in the late '60s, recording with Mick Jagger and Keith Richards, or living with David Lynch while at the School of the Museum of Fine Arts.

"It was sort of like the odd couple," says Wolf of his former roommate. "He was very neat and meticulous. I was sort of the bohemian mess."

Keeping with this bohemian mess tradition, Wolf says the stories he shares are very off-the-cuff.

"Some nights we'll put in 18 songs or sometimes 16 songs, depending on if I just rap on," he says. "It's all just very spontaneous."

Twilight star takes big bite out of gay rumours in media

► Kellan Lutz says straight men generally make for bad housemates

Twilight hunk Kellan Lutz doesn't mind the gay rumors going around about him — and he insists he knows where they come from.

"I don't Google myself, but I've heard that people think I'm gay. I've heard it all," he tells the Advocate.

"See, I don't really go after girls. Most of the girlfriends I've had have come after me. So it's really funny when girls get offended because I don't hit on them.

They will transform their insecurity into, 'Oh, that makes sense, because I heard you're into guys and have a boyfriend.' I'm like, 'Seriously? That's your tactic to get me to like you?'

There will always be rumors, but I know who I am."

Lutz also claims that he'd rather live with gay men than straight men.

"They're the cleanest, and they just take care of stuff," he explains.

"Straight guys are just kids who don't pick up after themselves."

Taylor Swift taking a break from boys

Taylor Swift says she's extremely single these days — and very happy that way.

"I don't have a boyfriend. I don't even have, like, kind of a boyfriend," the singer tells Ellen DeGeneres during a visit to her talk show.

"I don't have someone that I'm texting that is a guy that someday might be my boyfriend. There's, like, nothing going on right now."

"If you're the girl that needs a boyfriend, and once she loses that boyfriend needs to replace it with a different boyfriend, it's just this constant stream of boyfriends all the time. I don't feel like I ever want to be that girl."

Kosher Soup Book

With soup season upon us, Pam Reiss releases her book Soup: A Kosher Collection (Whitecap Books).

The collection features many recipes that adhere to strict Jewish laws.

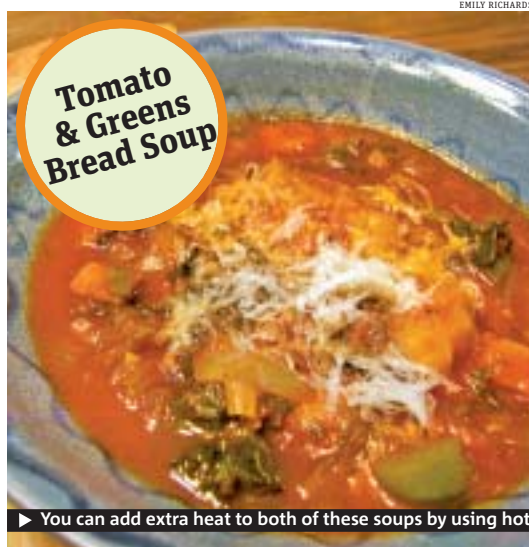

To keep kosher pertains not only to the type of food that may be eaten, but also the kinds of food that can be combined at one meal. For example, meat and dairy products may not be mixed.

Reiss offers 150 kosher recipes, many of which are vegetarian or contain fish, chicken, duck or beef.

Fall for this orange tippie

PETER ROCKWELL
LIQUIDASSETS@EASTLINK.CA
TWITTER: @THEREALWINEGUY

You have to love the Europeans. Not only do they treat wine like it's a part of everyday life, they have a ritual of pre-dinner drinks that makes booze a natural companion to their dining culture.

They do it up best in Italy. Order a glass of the appealingly bitter Campari ($20.99 - $27.49) and soda as a liquid preamble to your meal at any resto (here or there) and you'll get a nod from your waiter that suggests he knows you know how to drink Italian.

One of my favourite Italian cities to imbibe in is Verona in the province of Veneto. It's surrounded by the wine regions of Valpolicella, Bardolino and Soave, and the popular sparkling wine Prosecco is made nearby.

The Veronese are crazy for The Spritz: A mix of two ounces of Campari's little (and less bitter) brother Aperol ($21.99 - $25.98) with an equal part Prosecco and a dash of sparkling water.

Served over ice in a large wine glass and garnished with a slice of orange, it's an appetite enhancing refresher.

Thanks to its bright orange colour, it's also an appropriate tippie for the fall season.

Ace turned cheerleader

► As he recovers from elbow surgery, Wainwright fills ceremonial role for Cardinals

Throughout the post-season, the St. Louis Cardinals made it a point to keep Adam Wainwright involved. For now, ceremonial appearances will have to suffice for their on-the-mound 20-game winner.

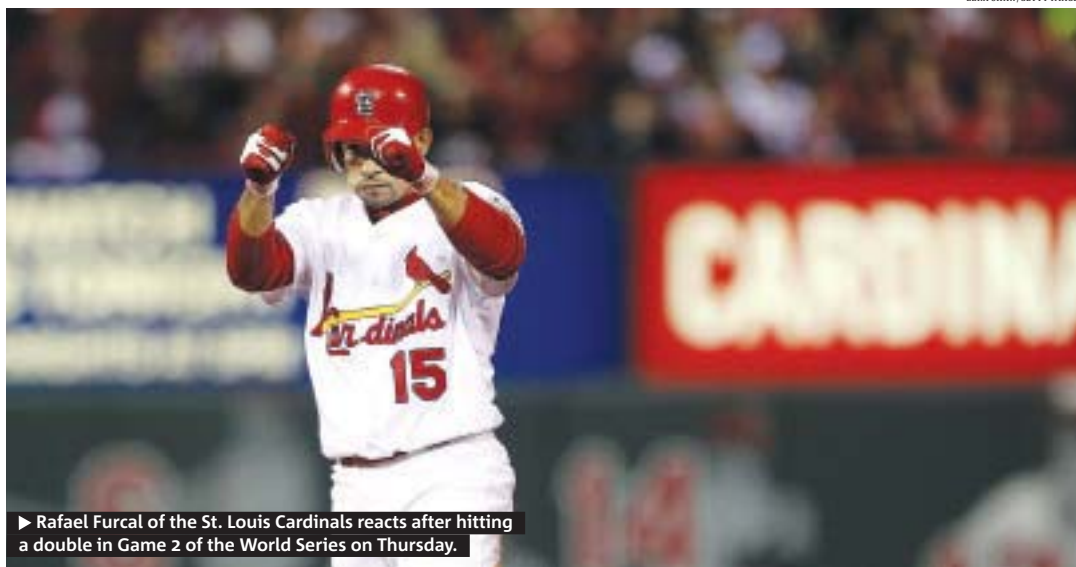

The six-foot-six right-hander will always be a part of Cardinals lore as the stand-in closer who got the final out of the 2006 NL championship series and World Series. Before Game 1 on Wednesday, he shared first-pitch duties with two Hall of Famers — Bob Gibson and Bruce Sutter — who were also on the mound at end of title seasons.

"Kind of like one of my highlights of the year," Wainwright said.

In the NLCS, Wainwright caught the first pitch from a pair of '06 Series stars, Jeff Suppan and Jim Edmonds. Then he retired to the bench and his unofficial role as No. 1 cheerleader for the surprise NL champs.

"I lose my voice every day," Wainwright said. "It's been so much fun, the last three or four trips I travelled with them in September and every playoff game I've been at home or road. They're not going to get rid of me that easy."

Next spring, they'll be counting on his power arm again. The Cardinals have suggested that they intend to pick up an option on Wainwright's contract. And, voila, a major upgrade without a foray into free agency.

Wainwright won 19 games in 2009, leading the league in wins, starts and innings and finishing third in NL Cy Young balloting while earning a Gold Glove. He was the Cy Young runner-up last year after going 20-11 with a 2.42 ERA. When closer Jason Isringhausen was sidelined by a hip injury in '06, it was Wainwright who froze the Mets' Carlos Beltran with a big curve for the final out of the NLCS on the road. He then fanned the Tigers' Brandon Inge for the finishing flourish to the team's first title in 24 years.

The Cardinals' unlikely run to the Series has whetted Wainwright's competitive juices.

"As excited as I am for this team and what they're doing right now, I'm equally excited about what's going to be happening for me next year," he said. "Each throwing session I have, it's positive."

The Cardinals' title hopes took a big hit when Wainwright had reconstructive elbow surgery early in spring training. A big first half from Kyle McClellan along with trade-deadline pickup Edwin Jackson helped give the staff just enough pitching to win the wild card without him.

Still, Wainwright has been an important fixture in the clubhouse.

"He's been a great guy to have around, even though he's been rehabbing," said Kyle Lohse, who led the staff with 14 victories. "Just his presence is a plus for us."

Wainwright has been throwing twice a week for two or three months and says "things are going great." He's even thrown a handful of bullpen sessions, and at one point tried to persuade the team to consider activating him if the Cardinals made it to the post-season.

The response was emphatic: absolutely not.

The Cardinals are unwilling to risk a setback with a pitcher who is at the top of the rotation with Game 1 winner Chris Carpenter and is expected back at full strength next spring.

"You're talking about a guy who was missed greatly," Lohse said. "You're adding a guy who has had 19-20 wins the last two years and it's going to be a huge addition."
